As abovementioned, in contemporary globalized world increase the role of society and humanitarian dimensions of security including the significance of traditional state-centric paradigm according to it states have been main actors of international relations, security and foreign policy have been belonged to so-called higher politics with lesser role of civil component. Current content of the phenomenon of security have transformed under the impact of the change of the essence and functions of the state. Security studies have also absorbed its contemporary trends of global development. Contents of the abovementioned security researches of Ukraine on the triad state – society – person include both general tendency with the stress on state component²¹ and researchers search the balance between state, society and humanitarian factors of security²². Some authors pay more attention on state and society components of the triad and lesser to humanitarian one²³ and some ones – lesser to society and humanitarian ones than to state one²⁴ that witness of the preservation of the tradition and the appearance of the innovation in security studies.

Conclusions of the research. Resuming, researchers on Ukrainian international problems in security domain enriched Ukraine's international science by investigation of the phenomenon of the national identity, peculiarities of Ukraine's security in the context of integration processes, bases of its economic security, its integral parts and mechanisms, factors and bases of the humanitarian and political security of the state, the specificity of information and military-information security of Ukraine and current issues of Ukraine's national security in the context of Transnistria conflict solution. Considering peculiarities of the security within the framework of change of the role of state in current international relations, researchers investigate also its society and humanitarian dimensions.

Prospects for further development in this direction. Research of the phenomenon of the security, its state, society and human dimensions, its integral parts, mechanisms, means, instruments, peculiarities of ensuring etc. facilitate to more profound understanding of the essence, aspects and complexity of these phenomena which has both theoretical value and practical significance.
